What Are We Doing To The Cannons?

The cannons will be collected in early November 2019 and will be transported to Seed Artillery (Altoona, PA). Once there, a complete rebuild of the carriage structures will take place. The double trail will be replaced with a single trail field carriage. The carriage will be made of white oak and steel hardware. The cast iron barrels will be restored and everything will be covered in epoxy and Urethane to preserve.

The cannons will be returned in the spring of 2020.

What We Hope To Achieve

The restoration of the cannons will cost the museum close to $20,000 from start to finish. We are asking the public to help us cover as much of that cost as possible. Our goal is to raise at least $10,000 to put towards the restoration. 100% of your gift will go towards supporting the restoration. The HLOM is a 501(c3) so don't forget your gift is tax deductible.

If you would like to watch our progress make sure you either stop by the museum or check on our website.

About the Cannons

- The Holland Land Office Museum plans to restore its two 6-pdrs, pre-Civil War cannons. Both cannons were cast by John Clark & Company in Richmond VA, later named Bellonia Foundry.
- The cannons were manufactured between 1828 and 1835 and were purchased for a New York State militia group
- It is believed, after they were delivered the guns most likely never left the State and were never used in battle.

Seed Artillery

Having been in the business of restoring antique small arms for over 18 years. In Altoona, PA David Seedenburg has acquired many of the unique skill sets which allow him to perfectly restore original antique artillery. Many collectors have trusted Seedenburg over the years with priceless irreplaceable antiques that needed fine engraving, silver inlay, wood repair, and complete part replacements. The replacement of missing parts requires skills in forging, casting, heat treating, and patina matching. Some of their work can be found at select National Parks, Medina, NY and the US Army. It is only through years of practice, from an early age, an inherent talent, and commitment to perfection that Seedenburg and Seed Artillery has emerged as the “go to” place for those who expect perfection.
